In this chart at the top of each MBE outline, we tell you how often a subject is tested on the MBE, i.e., you can expect 8–9 questions on relevancy and only about 2 questions on privileges. This helps you focus your study.

I. Hearsay and Circumstances of its Admissibility

1) Hearsay definition:

- a) Out of court
- b) Statement
 - i) There needs to be an intent to make an assertion—that is, an intent to communicate.
(1) Ex.: If you ask me where something is and I point, there is an intent to communicate.
- c) Offered to prove
- d) The truth of the matter asserted
 - i) If a statement is offered for credibility or to prove that something was spoken/written, it is not hearsay.
 - ii) See the first three hearsay exclusions for examples.

We list all the dates each topic was tested at the top in green, and throughout the outline next to each item.

There are helpful images throughout explaining each concept or giving more examples!

JD ADVISING

Hearsay Definition

- Out of court
- Statement
- Offered to prove
- The truth of the matter asserted

JD ADVISING

Hearsay Definition, Example:

After a car accident at 4:30 PM, the woman in the passenger seat yells "the light was green for us" then subsequently dies at the hospital a few hours later.

- If offered to prove:
 - There was a passenger in the car, it is not hearsay
 - The passenger was alive at 4:30, it is not hearsay
 - The light was green for us! The light was green, it is hearsay

Hearsay Definition, Example:

Excuse me, what caused the customer's injuries?

The clerk's pointing constitutes a "statement" because the clerk intended to communicate.

Clerk

JD ADVISING

2) Hearsay rule

- a) Hearsay is inadmissible unless an exception or exclusion applies.
- b) Rationale for the hearsay rule: hearsay is unreliable because
 - i) the declarant may misperceive an event;
 - ii) the declarant may misremember an event;

- iii) the declarant may be lying; or
 - iv) the person testifying in court may misremember the statement, may have misheard it, or may be lying about it.
- c) Thus, the law makes it necessary for the declarant herself to testify in court so that the jury can evaluate sincerity and whether the declarant has misperceived or misremembered the situation (likely through questions on cross-examination).

BAR EXAM TIP

3) Non-hearsay: Bar Exam Tip: The first three categories of non-hearsay are not used to prove the truth of the matter asserted. The next two categories (prior statements of a trial witness and an opposing party's statement ("party admission")) are used to prove the truth of the matter asserted.

Bar Exam Tips can be found throughout the outline!

Statements that are nonhearsay and not used to prove the truth of the matter

JD ADVISING

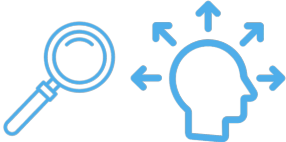

Statements That Are Nonhearsay and Not Used to Prove the Truth of the Matter

● Verbal act: legally operative words

● Effect on person who heard or read statement—"state of mind"

● Circumstantial evidence of speaker's state of mind

- a) Verbal act: legally operative words
- i) Rationale: The statement is not being offered for the truth of the matter asserted—only that the statement was said. The proponent is basically trying to prove an element of the claim, so therefore it is not hearsay.
 - ii) Definition: These are words that have a legal effect. They are being offered into court solely to prove that they were said, as merely saying the words gives rise to a claim.
 - iii) Examples include: defamation, contract formation, solicitation of crime, bribery, or to show something like sexual harassment, that a gift was made, perjury, or fraud.

JD ADVISING

Verbal Act: Legally Operative Words

COMPLAINT

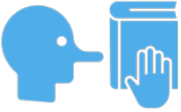

Count I

Count II

- If the proponent is offering the statement to prove an element of a claim and not for its truth, the statement is not hearsay
- Examples of legally operative words:

✓ Defamation

✓ Perjury

✓ Bribery

(1) Ex.: A coworker says to a woman, “you would look better without a shirt on.” The woman offers the statement into evidence in her sexual harassment claim against the coworker. She is not offering it to prove it is true, but to prove that the statement was said and that it constitutes sexual harassment.

b) Effect on person who heard or read statement—“state of mind” (effect on listener, effect on reader) (Feb 2013)

i) This is a statement that is not offered for the truth of the matter asserted—rather, it is generally offered to show that a person (1) had notice of a fact, or (2) to dispute motive or intent.

JD ADVISING

Effect on Person Who Heard or Read Statement—“State of Mind”

- A person heard or read a statement.
- As a result, they had notice of a fact, or motive or intent.
- The statement is not being offered to prove that it is true, but only to prove the person's state of mind (e.g., their notice of a fact, motive/intent).

(1) Notice

(a) Ex.: A woman slips in a grocery store and sues the store. An hour before the woman slipped, a witness overheard a different customer mention to the manager that the floor was very

We include practice problems with answer explanations in the back of the outline.

BAR EXAM TIP

slippery. Is the statement of the customer admissible in court? For what purpose?
 _____ .1

(b) Ex.: Bob Bystander says to Dan Driver, "Dan, it looks like your tire is flat." Dan drives his car anyway, but because the tire was flat, he strikes Patty Pedestrian. Patty sues Dan for negligence and wants to offer Bob's statement into evidence. May she? For what purpose—as substantive evidence, for proof he had notice of the flat tire, for both purposes, or neither?
 _____ .2

Bar Exam Tip: on the MBE, this hearsay exclusion often comes up with fact patterns involving cars and a negligence claim.

JD ADVISING

Effect on Listener, Example:

Mechanic: Your vehicle's brakes are faulty. Do you want us to fix them for you today?

Defendant: No, not today. I need to get going.

Assume a plaintiff sues the defendant for negligence after the defendant strikes the plaintiff with his vehicle at a crosswalk after leaving the mechanic. The mechanic's statement is admissible to show that the defendant had notice of the fact that his brakes were faulty.

(2) Motive or intent

(a) Ex.: A woman is charged with elder abuse because she did not give her mother the proper medications after her mother had surgery. As a result, her mother died. If the woman introduces a doctor's note that said not to give her mother the medications in question after surgery, then that note would be offered not for truth of matter but to show the _____ _____³ (and that the woman was not trying to abuse her mother).

(b) Ex.: Bob claims his manager, Linda, who was newly appointed to the manager position, discharged him from his sales job because she was biased against older people like him. Linda states he had been evaluated as "below average" based on past performance reviews written by his prior manager. Are the performance reviews admissible? For what purpose?

c) Circumstantial evidence of speaker's state of mind

- i) These are statements being offered to prove someone's state of mind—not truth.
- ii) Rationale: it is not being offered for the truth of the matter asserted so it is not hearsay.

Circumstantial Evidence of Speaker's State of Mind, Example:

God told me to kill him!

JD ADVISING

The defense would offer this statement as evidence of the defendant's mental disorder, not to prove the truth of the matter asserted (i.e., that God told the defendant to kill the victim).

(1) Ex.: A defense attorney introduces the fact that his client said, "God told me to kill [the victim]" to show the defendant was insane (not the truth of the matter).

Statements that are nonhearsay but are used to prove the truth of the matter

a) Prior statements of a trial witness—three kinds (Feb 2016)

i) Witness's prior statement of identification of a person (Feb 2016)

(a) Rationale: in-court identifications are not as reliable as identifications made under less suggestive circumstances.

JD ADVISING

Victim

Thanks for coming to the station to make a statement.

Witness's Prior Statement of Identification of a Person, Example:

That voice coming from the other room is the voice of the person who robbed me!

If the victim testifies, this statement identifying the person who robbed the victim is admissible as nonhearsay.

Examples in green font are from past Multistate Essay Exam answers.

(b) Ex.: A victim was robbed after leaving a jewelry store. She went into the police station to give a statement and when she walked in, she overheard the defendant in the adjoining room. As soon as she heard the defendant's voice, she said, "that is the voice of the guy who robbed me." If the victim testifies, this statement could be admitted as nonhearsay. (Feb 2016)

ii) Witness's prior inconsistent statement

(1) Rationale: to eliminate perjury.

(2) Elements:

(a) the statement is made under oath at a formal trial, hearing, or deposition;

- (b) it is inconsistent with the statement at trial; and
- (c) the declarant is testifying at a trial or hearing and is subject to cross-examination concerning the statement.

BAR EXAM TIP

(i) Bar Exam Tip: prior inconsistent statements that fall within this exception can be used for substantive evidence and impeachment!

(ii) Note: if used for impeachment too, the witness must have some opportunity to explain or deny the statement on the stand (unless the witness is the opposing party, because then the statement would be admissible as an opposing party's statement ("party admission") and their lawyer can simply call them to the stand).

Witness's Prior Inconsistent Statement

- The statement is made under oath at a formal trial, hearing, or deposition
- It is inconsistent with the statement at trial
- The declarant is testifying at a trial or hearing and is subject to cross-examination concerning the statement

 JD ADVISING

iii) Witness's prior consistent statement

(1) Rationale: it is used to rehabilitate the witness but also to prove that the statement is true since if the same statement was made pre-motive, the witness is less likely to be lying.

(2) Elements:

- (a) the statement is consistent with testimony at trial, and
- (b) is used to rebut charge of recent fabrication of improper motive/influence.

Witness's Prior Consistent Statement

- The statement is consistent with testimony at trial
- Is used to rebut charge of recent fabrication of improper motive/influence

 JD ADVISING

b) Opposing party's statement ("party admission") (Oct 2020, Feb 2020, July 2018, July 2016)

i) Rationale: the witness can simply take the stand and explain why he said what he said!

ii) There are four kinds of opposing party statements:

(1) Opposing party statement: any statement made by the opposing party if offered against that party.

Statement Made by Opposing Party

Plaintiff

Defendant

- Anything an opposing party states can be offered against that party.

(2) Adoptive admissions: A party remains silent under circumstances in which a reasonable person would protest if the statement were false. The proponent must show that the person:

- (a) heard and understood the statement,
- (b) was physically and mentally capable of responding, and
- (c) a reasonable person would have denied the statement.

(i) Ex.: If a woman came up to someone at a coffee shop and said, "I just saw you hit that old lady crossing the street then flee the scene!" a reasonable person would deny it if the incident did not occur. Thus, if the accused person is silent, heard and understood the statement, and was capable of responding, this would be an adoptive admission.

Adoptive Admissions

The proponent must show that the person:

- Heard and understood the statement
- Was physically and mentally capable of responding

- A reasonable person would have denied the statement

(3) Agent or employee statements:

These are admissible if:

- (a) they are made by the agent/employee,
- (b) they are offered against the principal/employer,
- (c) they are made during the existence of the agency/employment relationship, and
- (d) the statement concerns a matter within the scope of the agency or employment.

(i) Bar Exam Tip: The person does not need to be at work when the statement is made. The statement could be said after work but they must still be an agent or employee while the statement is made.

(4) Statement by co-conspirator: these are admissible if made during the course of and in furtherance of the conspiracy. Prosecutors must prove the existence of a conspiracy with independent proof that a conspiracy exists with something other than the statement. (Oct 2020)

(a) Note: _____

Here, which has been removed, the outline lists all the hearsay exceptions and more information on each. Next, we tell you how to approach hearsay on a Multistate Essay Exam (MEE) question!

Hearsay on the Multistate Essay Exam

I. Hearsay: how to approach a hearsay issue on the Multistate Essay Exam (mnemonic = DIA)

D: Define hearsay: hearsay is “an out of court statement offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted.”

I: State why it is important to determine if a statement is hearsay: hearsay is not admissible unless it comes within an exception.

A: Analyze exceptions or exclusions: Some of the tested hearsay exceptions are as follows:

- Excited utterance: an excited utterance is a “statement relating to a startling event or condition made while the declarant was under the stress or excitement that it caused.” (Feb 2016, July 2013)

- Present sense impression: a present sense impression is “a statement describing or explaining an event or condition made while or immediately after the declarant perceived it.” (Feb 2016, July 2013, Feb 2013)
- Statement made for medical diagnosis or treatment: these statements must be made for and reasonably pertinent to medical diagnosis or treatment and describe medical history, past or present symptoms or sensations, their inception, or their general cause. (July 2013)
- Business records: A record of “acts, events, conditions, opinions, or diagnoses” is admissible if it is made “at or near the time” of the event recorded by a “person with knowledge” of the event. Further, the making of the record must occur in the course of a regularly conducted business activity, and it must be the regular practice of the business to make the record. (Feb 2013, Feb 2008)
- State of mind nonhearsay exclusion: If offered to show state of mind and not truth, it is not hearsay. (Feb 2013)
- Prior statement of identification: a prior statement of identification by a witness who testifies at trial is considered nonhearsay. (Feb 2016)
- Opposing party’s statement (“party admission”): a statement made by an opposing party offered against them is not hearsay. (Oct 2020, Feb 2020, July 2016)
- Past recollection recorded: A record that is on a matter that the witness once knew about but now cannot recall well enough to testify fully and accurately and was made while the matter was fresh in the witness’s memory. The witness can read the record; it should not be offered as an exhibit. (July 2016)

Hearsay on an Essay Exam (DIA)

- Define hearsay
 Hearsay is "an out of court statement offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted."

- State why it is Important to determine if a statement is hearsay
 Hearsay is not admissible unless it comes within an exception.

- Analyze exceptions or exclusions

 JD ADVISING

Hearsay Exceptions

Declarant must be unavailable (invokes a privilege, is absent from the jurisdiction, ill or dead, lack of memory, or refuses to testify)

1. Forfeiture by wrongdoing (witness tampering): party engages in wrongdoing for the purpose of making a witness unavailable for trial.

2. Former testimony: declarant is unavailable and had given testimony at a former proceeding or deposition and it is admitted against a party or someone in privity who had the motive and opportunity to develop the statement.

3. Statement against interest: declarant is unavailable and made a statement he knew was against his interest at the time the statement was made.

4. Dying declaration: Declarant is unavailable, the statement was made while he believed death was impending, it concerns the cause or circumstances of death and it is used in a homicide or civil case. Tip: memorize these elements!

5. Statement of personal or family history (e.g., birthdate, marriage date)

Is it a CRIMINAL CASE? If so, if the statement is testimonial, the declarant is unavailable, and the defendant had no opportunity to cross-examine the declarant, the statement will NOT be admitted (pursuant to the Sixth Amendment). Tip: it will not be admitted even if there is a hearsay exception!

Declarant can be available or unavailable

1. Present sense impression: declarant describes or explains event as it is happening or immediately thereafter.

2. Excited utterance: there is a startling event and declarant makes statement while under the stress of excitement and statement relates to startling event.

3. Then-existing mental, emotional, or physical condition: declarant states his then existing feelings, physical conditions, or intent.

4. Statement made for medical diagnosis or treatment: declarant makes statement about past or present symptoms or cause for purpose of diagnosis or treatment.

5. Past recollection recorded: a witness has insufficient recollection of event, but made or adopted a statement when he had personal knowledge while it was fresh in his memory and can vouch for the accuracy of the statement.

6. Business records: a record made in the regular course of business at or about the time the event occurred and that contains information observed by employees of the business (or an independent hearsay exception exists).

7. Public records (made by an agency, but not police reports in criminal cases)

8. Learned treatises (read into evidence if an expert is on the stand)

9. Catchall exception (for trustworthy statements)

10. Others (reputation about character, familial relations, etc.)

Answers

¹ Yes, it can be offered to prove that the store had notice that the floor was slippery (but not that the floor was actually slippery).

² Yes, it can be offered to prove notice (but not that the tire was actually flat).

³ Effect on the woman.

⁴ Yes, this is admissible to show that Linda did not have discriminatory intent. This is not being admitted for the truth of matter asserted (but rather, to show her mindset).

⁵ Note: This would not generally apply after the coconspirators are caught because it is not made in the course of or in furtherance of the conspiracy. (It would still apply if, for example, it was part of the conspiracy to get caught.)
